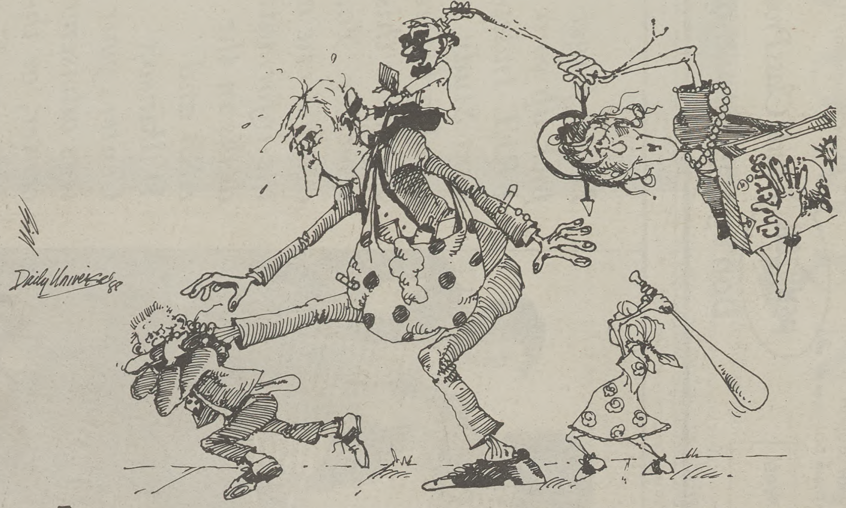
Be committed to basic tenets

The annual general conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints serves as a reminder for Church members to be committed to the promises made at the time of baptism.

We often hear complaints that general conference is the same old thing. It's true. We've heard it all before. The conference speeches generally contain no new doctrine or revelations. The general authorities simply repeat the basic principles of the gospel.

The reason is simple. We hear the same things taught because we are not fully committed to those basic tenets of the restored gospel of Jesus Christ. Perhaps when our promises fully turn to true commitment, then we may hear more than just the basics. To make eternal progress, we must first perfect the fundamentals.

Fortunately, conference provides an opportunity to evaluate priorities and commit to the standards we promised to live by, whether religiously, professionally or academically oriented.



IN FOND MEMORY OF THOSE PARENTS WHO TRIED TO GIVE THEIR KIDS A SPIRITUAL EXPERIENCE BY ATTENDING GENERAL CONFERENCE . . .

UNIVERSE OPINION

Committed Latter-day Saints should seek the blessings of the Church before anything else, said President Ezra Taft Benson. He counseled members to love God above all things. By pledging allegiance to Him, the proper structure is set for ensuing goals.

Elder L. Tom Perry of The Council of the Twelve, said to be "in the world" by adhering to our values. With committed values, involving oneself in community and national affairs can re-direct the path these institutions follow.

Scholastic commitment during the college years generates lifetime benefits as employment and advancement opportunities become available. As Elder Perry said, we do not have to violate our values to become viable, contributing members in our professions. Be committed to academic courses; be committed to the knowledge gained from each one.

We should welcome the opportunity to shape the future with our standards and values. Too often, we learn to live with the present and shun new opportunities, said Marvin J. Ashton, member of the First Quorum of Seventy. Through new opportunities we can achieve our goals and commitments to shape the future.

The choices we make and the values we establish for ourselves determine the future we will have. Our goals and aspirations should be oriented to achieve those commitments made. With sacrifice and total commitment, spiritual, professional and academic goals can be reached.

The above is the opinion of the Editorial Board of The Daily Universe which comprises the associate publisher, editor, opinion page editor, a teacher of opinion writing and a student staff member. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stunned

Editor,

I was surprised and stunned when my son at BYU informed me several weeks ago that the BYU Election Committee wouldn't allow him to run for BYUSA president; the reason was because of his "attitude toward service."

This is the same son who had been so active in service as the vice president of his high school, had served as a missionary for two years, had served as a counselor to the mission president, had served as chairman of BYU Orientations, had served as the president of Sunday School and and many other quiet organizations.

To the BYU Election Committee I say: "Who in the heck do you think you are?" My suggestion to the committee is that next year instead of picking your several choices for who may run for president, pick just one. This will eliminate all costs, campaigning stress and complete control. With this one pick you can then let the students think, choose and vote.

Real charity

Editor,

In two years of attending BYU I have never had a difficult time obtaining a Daily Universe to read. Many individuals would quickly give credit to the Daily Universe staff, but the credit must go to whom it truly belongs: the students.

Students who study in the Harold B. Lee Library demonstrate an enviable selflessness, for they provide many opportunities for other students to read The Daily Universe. These selfless students "go out of their way" to obtain a paper from the paper rack, and then, thinking of others, leave papers at strategic locations throughout the library. One kind act certainly deserves another, so I would like to share a few ideas on how your (students) kindness can further benefit other students.

Please continue to leave The Daily Universe on the ground of the third floor, so individuals can obtain copies by quickly snatching them from the floor without breaking stride.

A great reward to a student, sitting in a cushioned chair, is reaching underneath to find a newspaper. This place allows a student to relax and not have to expend energy getting out of their chair. For your work in the bathrooms, you are to be commended, for daydreaming has been turned into productivity.

When leaving papers on a table, you must refold them, or individuals will avoid your paper for a folded one. Finally, the value of your service is lost when you tear coupons from the paper, for this usually ruins a good article on another page.

Not only do you serve students through these activities, but you also create opportunities for others to serve. Students leaving papers in carrels, on tables, under chairs, by computers and throughout the library is a noble act, for it provides the custodians with an opportunity to serve. For students, the noble act of service is not always easy. Therefore, know your deeds do not go unnoticed.

Gone too far

Editor,

The past few semesters we've all been periodically bothered by the mandatory closing of campus Tuesday mornings for the devotionals and forums. This Tuesday, however, as I tried to get into the computer lab to edit an important term paper, only to find that the lab was closed for one and a half hours for the infamous "unforum," I really felt that it had gone too far.

BYU has to be the only institution of higher learning in the United States that closes down virtually all of its facilities, so that the students will gather for a mandatory "Late Morning with David Letterman," to watch a bunch of "stupid roommate tricks."

Will someone please tell me where the pep squad, Cosmo and the Ballroom Dance team fit into the busiest week of my college career? Will it be acceptable to tell my professor that my assignment was late because the administration thought it was imperative that I spend my morning watching "Pee Wee Herman" do the "tequila dance?"

I understand the importance of allowing all faculty and staff members the privilege of attending the devotionals, where often times general authorities address us. But I am missing something, or does the "David Letterman" show somehow deserve that same treatment?

There is nothing more frustrating than trying to meet a deadline only to be delayed by an absolutely ridiculous "policy" like the one currently blindly enforced on campus—especially in this case.

I think it's time for the new BYUSA (or whatever they call themselves this week) to prove to the student body that they are indeed not another administrative puppet, and restore a good old American privilege to our Tuesday morning forum attendance — "freedom of choice."

NEWS DIGEST

Compiled from staff and news service reports

Federal officers arrest Mexican national

SALT LAKE CITY — Federal officers arrested a 42-year-old Mexican national wanted for questioning in the 1985 death of a U.S. drug enforcement agent who was kidnapped and tortured before he was killed in Guadalajara, Mexico, officials say.

Federal Drug Enforcement Agent Steve Lough said Leonardo Contreras Subias was arrested without incident Friday at a downtown Salt Lake City restaurant.

"He's been a fugitive of ours since 1980," Lough said. "He's wanted in Mexico on homicide charges and we've been looking for him extensively since the murder of one of our agents in Guadalajara."

Lough said Subias was arrested on a drug charge in Los Angeles in 1980 and has been at large since he posted bail.

Subias is wanted for questioning in the 1985 torture-killing of U.S. drug enforcement agent Enrique Camarena Salazar. Mexican authorities also want to question him about the death of one of their agents, Lough said.

Subias was charged with flight to avoid prosecution and was expected to appear before a U.S. magistrate Monday.

It was unclear why Subias was in Salt Lake City, but Lough said the suspect apparently had visited the area before.

"He'd been here a couple of times, but we don't know if he was going to move here or just what," Lough said. He said Subias was staying in Salt Lake City.

Special report on Wilberg is completed

SALT LAKE CITY — Federal Mine Safety and Health investigators have completed a special probe of a 1984 fire at the Wilberg Mine that killed 27 coal miners and are forwarding their report to the agency's legal staff.

The report first will be presented to the National MSHA Committee for signatures and then will be sent to the head of the organization's coal division, MSHA spokesman Frank O'Gorman said Sunday from his home in Arlington, Va.

O'Gorman said he not read the report and could not confirm reports that investigators have recommended it be forwarded to the Justice Department for possible prosecution of mine owners Emery Mining Corp. and Utah Power & Light. He said the legal staff would decide whether the report goes to the Justice Department.

However, he said the report was given to Rep. Howard Nielsen, R-Utah, whose staff member Bill Sampson said he was told that the report would go to the justice department.

Pope tells millions to pray for peace

Christians worldwide looked beyond global strife on Easter Sunday, braving unrest in the Holy Land and praying in England for an end to Northern Ireland's religious bloodshed.

In his traditional Easter address in Vatican City, Pope John Paul II told 100,000 people in St. Peter's Square and a broadcast audience of millions to remember people around the world who suffer from injustice and war.

"Pray for peace in the world, for justice, pray for the rights of man, especially for religious freedom," he said.

In Jerusalem, about 1,000 faithful joined in services at the site where most Christians believe Jesus rose from the dead.

But church officials said only about half as many people came as last year to the services at the 12th-century Church of the Holy Sepulcher. Many were deterred by four months of Palestinian protests and Israeli crackdowns in the occupied territories that have left more than 130 Arabs dead.

In Canterbury, England, Anglican Archbishop Robert Runcie likened the recent murder of two British soldiers at an Irish Republican Army funeral to Christ's crucifixion.

Candidates campaign in Easter services

The presidential candidates took their politicking to Easter church services on Sunday as they battled for victory in this week's campaign double feature — the Colorado caucuses and Wisconsin primary.

Republican Pat Robertson, whose candidacy is all but derailed by Vice President George Bush's march to the nomination, said he has a mandate from God and won't stop until he is president of the United States.

Saying he would run again in 1992, Robertson told about 3,000 people at Denver's Happy Church that "I am not going to quit ... That is His plan for me and for this nation."

But with Bush's nomination virtually assured, the 1988 focus is now on the Democrats.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, who has staked hopes of reviving his trailing campaign with a good showing in Wisconsin on Tuesday, picked up the endorsement this weekend of the Milwaukee Journal.

Poll shows polygamist siege hurt Utah

SALT LAKE CITY — Most Utahns believe that a polygamist family's 13-day seige that ended in a bloody shootout with authorities has tarnished the state's image throughout the nation, a new poll shows.

The poll, conducted by Bardsley, Hardison & Neidhart, asked Utahns to evaluate the effect of the incident that ended Jan. 28 in Marion, Utah, with the death of a state corrections officer and the wounding of family leader Addam Swapp.

Nearly two thirds of those responding to the poll conducted for The Salt Lake Tribune felt that the incident left some serious scars on the state's reputation.

Responding to questions on the degree of damage to the state's national image, 25 percent of those polled said a great deal of damage had been done, while 39 percent said some damage had been done. Another 24 percent said not very much damage was done, while 8 percent said none was done at all. Four percent were undecided.

Gunman robs Twilight Zone

By BRENT HALES
Universe Staff Writer

The Twilight Zone at the BYU Bookstore was robbed of several hundred dollars on the evening of April 1, according to one BYU police officer.

According to Aaron Rhoades, investigating officer for BYU police, the suspect walked into the Twilight Zone of the BYU Bookstore Friday at 9:30 p.m.

The suspect approached the cashier and said, "This is not April Fool's," then demanded the money that was in the cash register.

Rhoades said the suspect showed the cashier a hand gun, but did not threaten her with it.

The cashier proceeded to put the money in a bag, but "she wasn't doing it fast enough, so the suspect reached in and grabbed it himself, then ran out," said Rhoades.

The suspect took approximately $590 from the cash register, said Rhoades.

The suspect is described as a white male, 5'6", 130 pounds, age 18-22, with dark brown or black hair.

He was wearing a white turtleneck sweater with white lettering, a bluejean jacket, and bluejean pants.

"This is a rare occurence at BYU ... to have an armed robbery," said Rhoades.

Pilgrims from around world gathe

Loving God is not a 'lukewarm endeavor'

sident Benson opened the 158th Annual General Conference Saturday morning with a talk that stressed obeying the first nmandment.

By MICHELLE MELENDEZ
Senior Reporter

SALT LAKE CITY — Loving God is no "lukewarm endeavor," said President Ezra Taft Benson in the Saturday morning session of the 158th Annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

> "We must put God in the forefront of everything else in our lives. When we put God first, all other things fall into their proper place or drop out of our lives."
> — Pres. Benson

"To love God with all your heart, soul, mind and strength is all-consuming and all encompassing. It is total commitment of our very being — physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually — to a love of the Lord," President Benson said.

He was joined by four general authorities, including President Howard W. Hunter, acting president of the Council of the Twelve, and Elder James M. Paramore, a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy.

According to President Benson, "We must put God in the forefront of everything else in our lives. When we put God first, all other things fall into their proper place or drop out of our lives."

He said one of the most difficult tests in life will be choosing between pleasing God or pleasing someone you love, particularly family members. "Sometimes we must choose to honor the Father over our mortal father."

President Benson admonished fathers to maintain daily family prayer, and individual time with their wives and children.

He instructed mothers to honor their divine calling "by not leaving the homefront to follow the ways of the world." And he asked children to pray for their parents and "add honor to their name."

"Whatever God requires is right," he said, quoting the Prophet Joseph Smith.

Elder Paramore encouraged LDS Church members to "seek the blessings of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints." He said the Church "is necessary to help us to change our lives, to become new creatures."

He cited examples of those whose lives were blessed because of activity in the Church.

One police officer who was honored as the outstanding police officer in California said, "All I know about organizing is what I've learned in the Church."

Paramore also quoted George Romney, former governor of Michigan, who said, "What success I have had in the business world I owe to the training I received in this church."

Elder Paramore said that the Church provides all of the teachings of the Savior, "the authority under heaven," saving ordinances, brotherhood and sisterhood, "a refuge from the world," and a way of overcoming selfishness and uncertainty by serving others.

"The Church is a way of life," and its organizations and cultural and developmental opportunities are the "envy of the world," he said.

Quoting the Prophet David O. McKay, he said, "I see an opportunity for social welfare such as cannot be found in any other organization in the world."

As the last speaker in the morning session, President Hunter talked about "the atoning sacrifice and the literal resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ."

He said perhaps many of us may not have "fully glimpsed its spiritual significance and eternal grandeur."

President Hunter described some of the final scenes of Christ's life as he healed the sick, raised the dead, and expounded the scriptures.

"In the hours that followed, he sweat drops of blood, was scourged by the very leaders who claimed to be custodians of his law and was crucified in the company of thieves."

To complete the atonement, Christ then broke "the bands of death." When Christ's mother and Mary Magdelene came to the tomb, they found it open and empty.

"The angels had tarried to tell them the greatest news ever to fall on human ears: 'He is not here: for he is risen, as he said,' " President Hunter said.

"It is the responsibility and joy of all men and women everywhere to 'seek this Jesus of whom the prophets and apostles have testified,' " he said.

WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

"A woman of faith . . . is one whose heart and soul, mind and strength are committed to the pursuit of true values."
Camilla Eyring Kimball

Conference Objective
The conference sessions will focus on strengthening ourselves and then sharing our strength with others in our families, communities, and the world. It is our hope that conference participants will feel strengthened in their own faith and depart with a renewed commitment to serve God with heart and soul, mind and strength by serving others.

Who Should Attend
The conference is designed not only for women of all ages and situations in life but also for men – brothers, sons, husbands and fathers. Since many of the problems facing women are shared by men, it is important that together we explore solutions. We especially invite both men and women to attend the free Thursday evening fireside with Dr. Brent A. Barlow.

Preparation is theme of talks

By TERI JENKS
Universe Staff Writer

SALT LAKE CITY – Elder L. Tom Perry of the LDS Council of the Twelve, speaking during the Saturday morning session of the 158th Annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, admonished LDS Church members to be mindful of the responsibilities they have to be "in the world" but not of the world.

Elder Perry gave the example of Daniel of the Old Testament as someone who lived " 'in the world,' and influenced it through his righteous living." Daniel was taken to be trained for service in the court of Nebuchadnezzar. He overcame tests in being "in the world" by not challenging the beliefs of the Babylonians, said Elder Perry. Daniel found "that he did not have to adopt a different standard of values when he was 'in the world,' " Elder Perry said.

Speaking of prior experiences, Elder Perry found that by adhering to his values and drinking a glass of milk at cocktail hours during business dinners, he did not have to "violate Church standards to become a viable, contributing member of my chosen profession."

"I found, just as Daniel did, that being different in the world brought some interesting reactions, but obedience to the Lord's law is always associated with His blessings," he said.

Elder Perry also reminded LDS Church members to "declare the Gospel to all of our Father in Heaven's children." He encouraged Church members to exert their influence outward to shape the right direction for institutions such as governments, communities, neighborhoods and schools. "How effective will be the results of our service if we will continue to serve, each in our own personal way, 'in the world' in which we live," he said.

Elder Neal A. Maxwell, of The LDS Council of the Twelve Apostles, who also spoke during the Saturday session, reminded Church members to "not be alarmists" by prematurely expecting the Second Coming, but to be "noticing and preparing."

He spoke of the need to know when summer is nigh by keeping the eyes on more than a few leaves of the fig tree. "... It is one thing to notice strong ocean breakers crashing against the shore ... and quite another to discern the powerful movements on the ocean's quake-jarred floor foretelling a terrible tidal wave," he said.

Church members should notice and ponder but not become preoccupied and ignore "any sprouting leaves because of being 'overcharged' with the cares of this life,' " said Elder Maxwell.

Some conditions in the days of Noah and Lot described in the Bible will precede the Second Coming of the Savior, he said. Two words used in the Bible describing Noah's time, "violence and corruption ... appear to be increasing today," Maxwell said.

"Those in Lot's day ate 'drank, bought, sold, planted, and builded' amid gross wickedness."

In the last days, however, the Church will grow extensively and many fine and wonderful men will continue to lead decent and useful lives," he said.

"Besides, as Mormon said, scriptural commentary on declining conditions is not communicated 'to weigh thee down,' but to help us live so that Christ may 'lift thee up,' " said Elder Maxwell.

Priorities and families among subjects of priesthood session

By TOM E. NORMAN
Universe Staff Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — President Ezra Taft Benson, at the priesthood session of the 158th Annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, told members of the priesthood that the greatest joys of life are centered in the family.

"I can assure you that the greatest responsibility and the greatest joys in life are centered in the family, honorable marriage, and rearing a righteous posterity," he said.

President Benson directed his words "to the single adult brethren of the Church." Stressing that he has great expectations and hopes for the single men, President Benson said, "Just what are your priorities at this time in your life?"

President Benson suggested the priorities that young men should have, emphasizing the importance of keeping the Lord's commandments. He stressed sincere prayer, scripture study, church activity, high dress standards and service. "All it takes for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing," he added. He said the position of the Church has never changed concerning temple marriage. "It is a commandment of God."

He concluded his talk by quoting Lehi from The Book of Mormon, "Arise from the dust my sons and be men."

Elder James E. Faust, a member of the LDS Council of the Twelve, also spoke at the session. Elder Faust also spoke of the responsibilities that men have to their families, mainly to their wives.

He began his talk by telling of an "insensitive" man who had season tickets to the basketball games of a local university. His wife had just passed away and he was questioned at the next game why he couldn't find a member of the family to attend the games with him. The man answered, "They've all gone to the funeral."

Elder Faust stated that all too often men get too engrossed in their own activities and overshadow less visible contributions of their wives.

He said that women's inner strength comes from their spirituality. "They equal or even surpass men, as they do in faith ... They have more trust in the Lord, more faith in his word."

Elder Faust asked the priesthood holders to honor women and said he believes that angels attend them in their motherly ministry.

"Let us all determine to shed any barnacles of sin ... to honor the priesthood we bear through the service we render," said President Thomas S. Monson, second counselor in the First Presidency, in his address at the session. President Monson also conducted the meeting.

He gave the illustration of ship captains who prefer to dock their ships in fresh water rather than salt water because barnacles cannot live in the fresh water.

> "I can assure you that the greatest responsibility and the greatest joys in life are centered in the family, honorable marriage, and rearing a righteous posterity."
> — Pres. Benson

President Monson said that sins are like barnacles and that hardly anyone goes through life without picking up some. "They increase the drag, slow our progress, decrease our efficiency," he said, "unrepented, they can eventually sink us."

President Monson told of Nephi, Samuel, Paul, Job and Joseph, "pioneers" that made a difference in their own times. He also emphasized the quickening pace of actvity in modern times following the annoucement by former LDS President Spencer W. Kimball, "We must lengthen our stride." He added that new printing presses have had to be constructed since President Benson asked the Church to read The Book of Mormon.

President Monson also said that Church members need to be quick to bear their testimonies. He said, due to indecision, he has seen the truth of the statement, "When the time for decision arrives, the time for preparation has past."

Other speakers at the session were Bishop Henry B. Eyring, first counselor in the Presiding Bishropric, and President Gordon B. Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency.

President Monson told members of the congregation as the session began that in attendance in the tabernacle were BYU basketball players Michael Smith and Brian Taylor.

Music for the session was provided by a men's choir from the Ogden and Mount Ogden regions of the LDS Church.

The choir sang "The Iron Rod," "How Great Thou Art," "We Thank Thee, O God, for a Prophet" and "Rise Up, O Men of God". Prayers were given by Elders Hugh W. Pinnock and Adney Y. Komatsu, members of the First Quorum of the Seventy of the LDS Church.

lder Nelson gave three scriptural nes that are requirements for eving the "impossible."

rst, "faith is nurtured through vledge of God," he said. "It comes prayer and feasting upon the ls of Christ through diligent y of the scriptures."

ecause we are to look upon the l in every thought, Elder Nelson the second requirement is focus. hat special vision will also help fy when your wishes may be a bit and out of focus with God's s for your divine destiny," he so, Elder Oaks said we should serve as we are called. "Follow is the word the Savior used when he called his helpers to the ministry," he said.

"Among the things we should remember about the Savior is that there are things we should forget about our fellowmen — the wrongs they have done us."

Elder Oaks also discussed the "plight of single adult members of the Church."

He referred to a letter he received from a single LDS sister who asked, "Where do I fit in?" Elder Oaks said he receives thousands of letters expressing similar feelings.

Just as the Savior taught us the parable of the good shepherd "who left the multitude and went out in search of a single sheep who was lost," Elder Oaks encouraged couples who enjoy loving companionships to include single brothers and sisters into their social circles.

Tabernacle Choir members and general authorities stand to the congregation in a hymn.

Elder Oaks quoted President Kimball as saying, "Let us fellowship the students from all nations as they come to our land, so that we, above all other people, treat them as brothers and sisters in true friendship, whether or not they are interested in the gospel."

Another speaker, Elder David B. Haight of the Council of the Twelve, followed the spirit of the Easter season and spoke on Christ's atoning sacrifice.

"If we could feel or were sensitive, even in the slightest, to the matchless love of our Savior and his willingness to suffer for our individual sins," Elder Haight said, "we would cease procrastination and clean the slate and repent of all our transgressions."

He said, "The spirit of truth leads men to righteousness, but we must have a desire to seek truth and take the time to form spiritual habits and respond to spiritual impressions if we are to keep our souls alive, and is not now the time to begin?"

Elder Glenn L. Rudd of the First Quorum of the Seventy addressed the members concerning the simple things of the gospel. "The gospel of Jesus Christ is beautifully simple and simply beautiful," he said.

Elder Rudd said nothing is more simple than prayer. He told a story of a primary-age boy who met an apostle. The boy said, "I think you are one of the apostles of the Church. I think you are the one who travels all over the ocean on big boats and little boats and all kinds of airplanes — and you are the one who never gets sick or hurt in any wrecks."

The boy proceeded to ask the apostle why he never got hurt or sick and the apostle had no reply. The boy said, "That's because I pray for you."

Elder Douglas H. Smith, also a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy, asked listeners of the afternoon session, "What think ye of Christ?

"The Lamb of God came to earth to redeem and to teach," said Elder Smith. "He taught the blessed law of love. The Holy One of Israel sought no earthly personal gain nor glory."

Elder Smith bore a solemn testimony that Jesus lives and "every act of his life was one of deep inner love, compassion, kindness and forgiveness.

"Quietly, and without further utterance in his own defense, he gave his life as a ransom for us."

Elder Angel Abrea, member of the First Quorum of the Seventy, spoke on the evil of the security of not doing or being.

"There are many people, who out of fear, create within themselves mental scarecrows and eventually end up believing these scarecrows are real," he said, "and in this manner they base their lives on false principles."

Elder Abrea said there is no guarantee of a great reward for anyone.

"There is no way that any of God's children can be assured of blessings from the Most High unless this reward is a result of worthy actions in our lives," he said.

At the session Robert E.Sackley and L.Lionel Kendrick were called to the Quorum of the Seventy and Michaelene Packer Grassli was called as the General Primary President.

Easter morning provides theme

Apostles stress God's love

By CAMILLE GOODRICH and BRIAN T. WEST
Universe Staff Writers

SALT LAKE CITY — Elder Marvin J. Ashton, of the LDS Council of the Twelve, urged and invited those who have temporarily lost certain privileges in the Church to "come back."

"Your lives are as important to us as they should be to you," he said during the Sunday morning general conference session of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

For those who are in the "waiting" stage of returning to full fellowship, many things can be done in the meantime, Elder Ashton said.

"There is no waiting period before we can come unto God. In our weakness we know where we can turn for strength." Good advice and wise direction can be gleaned from studying the scriptures, which will in turn result in renewed self esteem and strength to do God's will, he said.

Feelings of resentment and bitterness toward those administering the discipline should be shunned. A repentant person should choose his own course and proceed with confidence, avoiding self-inflicted sympathy. "It is generally good medicine to sympathize with others, but not with yourself," said Elder Ashton.

While waiting, there are many ways to participate. "Some privileges and powers are lost," said Elder Ashton, "but let us not lose ourselves in the process of finding ourselves again. In God's eyes nobody is a nobody."

Elder Ashton said Church members should not be indifferent toward those who have been excommunicated or disfellowshipped, but need to learn to love everyone, including those who are difficult to love.

President Gordon B. Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency, said that of all the events in human history, the resurrection of Jesus Christ is the most significant.

Pres. Thomas S. Monson, second counselor in the First Presidency, stressed the importance of good decisions in his Sunday morning talk.

"Of all the victories ... none is so great, none so universal in its effect, none so everlasting in its consequences as the victory of ... the lonely, pain-racked figure on Calvary's cross who triumphed over death and brought the gift of eternal life to all mankind," he said.

With the recent passing of several of President Hinckley's friends, he said, "there has also been comfort and reassurance and certainty that death ... is not the end.

"Death, although bitter to observe, is only another graduation from which we go on to a better life," President Hinckley said.

President Thomas S. Monson, second counselor in the First Presidency, expounded on "life's greatest questions," which he said were: Where did we come from? Why are we here? Where do we go when we leave this life?

"These questions and answers transcend mortality. They embrace eternity," he said.

The spirits of man are the offspring of God, said President Monson. Life is a "time of testing" and an opportunity to prove ourselves as we learn to discern between good and evil. "We discover that decisions do indeed determine destiny," he said.

Unlike children's toy boats which have no rudder to provide direction and no source of power, "we have been provided divine attributes to guide our journey. We enter mortality not to float with the moving currents of life, but with the power to think, to reason and to achieve," President Monson said.

To ensure a "safe return" the Lord has provided guidance through prayer, scripture and the whisperings of the Holy Ghost.

According to Elder M. Russell Ballard, of the LDS Council of the Twelve, it is important to take time to observe and appreciate the marvels of nature, because "to truly reverence the Creator, we must appreciate his creations."

According to Elder Ballard, "All the marvels of nature are glimpses of his diving power and expressions of his love." God's gift of his son, Jesus Christ is an "incomparable manifestation of this divine love for us."

God has expressed his love for his children by providing the guidance needed for progression and the attainment of their potential, he said.

God has given divine counsel, guidance and commandments in the scriptures, Elder Ballard said. "When we understand and follow these instructions, our lives have purpose and meaning."

Elder Richard G. Scott directed his comments to those whose loved ones have "turned from righteousness to pursue evil."

The member of the First Quorum of the Seventy said there are many things which can be done to help a person return to the light, but some things must be done by the Lord. "Forced obedience yields no blessings," he said.

Elder Scott suggested six ways to help those who have turned from righteousness. "First, love without limitations. ... Second, do not condone the transgressions, but extend every hope and support to the transgressor."

Teach truth, honestly forgive as often as is required, pray trustingly and keep perspective, he said. "When you have done all that you can reasonably do, rest the burden in the hands of the Lord.

"Do not feel guilty because you cannot do more," Elder Scott said. "In time, you will feel impressions and know how to give further help.

'Be without guile,' says Elder Wirthlin

By SHELLEY L. McMURDIE
Universe Staff Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The necessity for members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to be without guile may be more urgent now than at any other time, said Elder Joseph B. Wirthlin, of the LDS Council of the Twelve Apostles.

Elder Wirthlin said this is because many people in the world apparently do not understand the importance of this virtue or are indifferent to it.

Be without guile

"When the Savior spoke of being without guile, he referred to something far deeper than outward appearance — he was reaching into the soul, to the very heart of righteousness," Elder Wirthlin said at the final session of the LDS 158th Annual General Conference.

"Fraud and deception appear to be increasingly acceptable; the only wrongdoing seems to be in being caught," he said.

Elder Wirthlin encouraged members to be without guile in every aspect of their lives.

"I suggest that we look into our hearts and see whether our motives and actions are pure and above reproach, and to see whether we are free of deceit and fraud."

To be without guile is to be free of deceit, cunning, hypocrisy, and dishonesty in thought or action, he said. A person without guile is a person of innocence, honest intent and pure motives whose life reflects the simple practice of conforming his daily actions to principles of integrity.

Those who are without guile are honest, true and righteous, Elder Wirthlin said.

And those who are honest are fair and truthful in their speech, straightforward in their dealings, free of deceit, and above stealing, misrepresentation or any other fraudulent action.

Elder Wirthlin said that members of the LDS Church should become pure and without guile as little children are.

He quoted Jesus Christ in a scripture from the Book of Mormon, and said, "Ye must repent, and be baptized in my name, and become as a little child, or ye can in nowise inherit the kingdom of God."

"What a great responsibility rests with parents to be certain that they do nothing to alter or destroy the guileless innocence of their little ones," Elder Wirthlin said.

Truths of science

Elder George R. Hill, III, who was called as a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy last April, said in his endeavors as a scientist he has had the opportunity to simultaneously discover facts and principles of truth revealed.

"There is no conflict between the facts and truths of science and those given to us by direct revelation," Elder Hill said in the Sunday afternoon session.

"Rather than conflicting, the facts and truths in each area compliment each other, each supplying answers to basic questions which we must know if we are to fulfill our destiny as sons and daughters and co-partners with our Father in his eternal plan."

As members of the Lord's church "our blessing is to believe all that is true, and to diligently seek learning 'by study and also by faith,' " said Elder Hill.

Treat wives as daughters of God

Elder Yoshihiko Kikuchi, of the First Quorum of the Seventy and mission president of the Honolulu Hawaii mission, admonished the husbands of the Church to treat their wives as the daughters of God that they are.

"Are we honoring our companion? Are we caring? Are we thoughtful? We must, because God has joined us together," he said.

Love them, counseled Elder Kikuchi. He asked husbands to love their wives as much as Christ loved the Church, so much that He gave his life for it.

SALT LAKE CITY — For the next six months, the conference edition of the Ensign should stand next to people's standard works and be referred to frequently, said President Gordon B. Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

President Hinckley spoke in behalf of Ezra Taft Benson, Church President who attended the closing session of the 158th Annual General Conference, but asked if President Hinckley could give his address.

"President Benson is weary after having attended and participated in the other sessions," said President Hinckley. "I am happy to respond to his request."

Come unto Christ

Speaking for the prophet, President Hinckley said, "May we all go to our homes rededicated to the sacred mission of the Church as so beautifully set forth in these conference sessions — to invite all to come unto Christ."

President Hinckley stressed the importance of following the grand three-fold mission of the Church, that of proclaiming the gospel, perfecting the Saints and redeeming the dead.

"While we still feel the spirit of this great conference and while the words still ring in our ears, let us determine how each of us can be doers of the word and not hearers only," he said.

In proclaiming the gospel, President Hinckley identified ways every individual member can serve their missionary efforts.

"As a member of the Church, do you realize that, as a member-missionary, you have a sacred responsibility to share the gospel with friends and family?" he asked.

Atonement necessary

During the Easter day session, Elder Boyd K. Packer, of the Council of the Twelve, addressed the subject of the atonement of Jesus Christ.

"During all the taunting, the abuse, the scourging and the final torture of crucifixion, the Lord remained silent and submissive," said Elder Packer. "Except, that is, for one moment of intense drama which reveals the very essence of Christian doctrine."

That moment came during the trial when Pilate made reference to the control he believed he had over Jesus.

But the Savior said, "Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above," said Elder Packer, quoting from John 19:11.

Stressing the significance of the Book of Mormon as a second witness of Jesus Christ, Elder Packer noted that the New Testament makes reference to the word "atonement" only once because many precious passages were lost.

The Book of Mormon makes reference to it 55 times. "Those plain and precious things were restored. They are in the Book of Mormon," he said.

Know shepherd's voice

Elder John R. Lasater, who was sustained as a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy last April, said the personal nature of the Lord's ministry as the Master Shepherd should be the pattern for all who shepherd the flocks of Israel, even in the present time.

"Do we understand the personal nature of the shepherd's call? Whether we are home teachers, visiting teachers, auxiliary leaders and teachers, priesthood leaders or whatever other calling, we have received a divine injunction from God, through a living prophet, to become personal shepherds and ministers," said Elder Lasater.

"No, it is not a new call; it has always been so."

Sister Dwan J. Young, who has served as General Primary president for eight years, was released during the conference to assist her husband in his new calling as a mission president in Alberta, Canada.

During the closing session, Sister Young spoke about teaching children the gospel and the importance of spending time with them every day.

"But many of our children today are learning under less than ideal circumstances," she said.

"Even in elementary schools, some of the children are confronted with drugs, alcohol, profane language and even immorality among classmates.

"In this kind of environment, we must take time to teach children about the important things of life — about Heavenly Father, the Savior and the Holy Ghost," said Sister Young.

"We must teach them about repentance, baptism, honesty and doing good to others."

Oklahoma faces Kansas for title

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The 1988 NCAA basketball tournament winner will belong to the Big Eight conference. That much we know. The question now is will the Kansas Jayhawks, who finished third in their conference during the regular season, be able to beat the team they lost to twice during the regular season — Oklahoma — for the national championship.

Tip off for tonight's game is set for 8 p.m. (MST).

"We've been the quickest team on the floor every game we've played," said Sooner guard Mookie Blaylock. "Even though we already beat Kansas twice this year, that doesn't mean we're going to come out Monday night and be overconfident.

"We didn't take Arizona lightly and we sure aren't going to take Kansas lightly," said Blaylock.

OKLAHOMA-ARIZONA

Stacey King and Harvey Grant each scored 21 points and No. 4 Oklahoma pressured second-ranked Arizona out of its game Saturday night, 86-78, setting up the all-Big Eight showdown.

King, a 6-foot-10 junior center and the Sooners' leading scorer at 22.9 and the NCAA tournament's leading scorer with 135 points in five games, was charged with his fourth foul with 9:16 remaining in the game and Oklahoma leading 58-49.

But the Sooners, second in the nation in scoring this season with 104 points per game, turned into a patient team and ran the 45-second clock down on each of its possessions.

The Sooners seemed to take command of the game with an 11-0 run in the first half and they led 39-27 at halftime.

But the Wildcats got within 51-48 with 12:51 left on a three-point play by All-American Sean Elliott. The Sooners then went on a 7-2 run capped by Ricky Grace's 3-pointer with 10:42 left that gave them a 58-49 lead.

King's fourth foul came on the next possession and the Sooners showed they can work the ball and be a patient offensive team.

Grace added 13 points for Oklahoma, while his backcourtmate Mookie Blaylock had 11.

Elliott led Arizona with 31 points, while Anthony Cook had 16.

Arizona was taken out of its game by the Sooners as the Wildcats committed 15 turnovers, nine in the first half, after averaging just 12 per game this season.

Arizona was also far from its usual 3-point shooting team as it made just six of 23 compared with a season percentage of 49.

Arizona's Steve Kerr, who made 60 percent of his 3-point attempts during the season, was just 2-for-13 from the field.

KANSAS-DUKE

Danny Manning, the man in Kansas' one-man show, led the Jayhawks as they put fifth-ranked Duke away early Saturday and held on for a 66-59 victory.

Manning scored 25 points, had 10 rebounds and seven blocked shots and led a smothering defense — borrowing Duke's trademark in beating the Blue Devils and avenging a 1986 Final Four semifinal loss to the same team.

Kansas, which last went to the national final in 1957 and won its only title in 1952, scored the first 14 points and led by as many as 18 in the first half. Duke whittled the lead to three with 4:17 to play behind Danny Ferry, but that was as good as the Blue Devils could do.

As a sophomore two years ago, Manning scored only four points against Duke after getting into foul trouble. This time, the two-time All-American not only scored points, but he rejected shots (6), made steals (4) and led a Kansas defense that held Duke to just two points in its first 11 possessions of the game and lowest point total of the season.

"I knew there were some things I had to do to pick up the slack," said Manning on Saturday.

'Y' proves solid in outdoor meet

During the first home meet of the season held outdoors, the BYU Men's Outdoor Track Team put on a solid performance in a non-scoring meet.

This meet was one the team used to relax a little, said Head Coach Clarence Robison.

"We're not worried about scoring today, It's a home meet and they (the team) need to see what they can do and relax a bit.

"We let our people have a chance to run other events than they normally do," said Robison.

The meet was on Saturday except for the decathletes who began competition on Friday.

Mike Davis of BYU won the decathlon, and with a score of 74.39 in the 1500-meter run, he qualified for the NCAA's.

Other events that are included in the Decathlon are the 100-meter dash, long jump, shot put, high jump, 400-meter dash, 110-meter high hurdles, discus, pole vault and the javelin.

The Cougars piled up 12 first-place finishes. Ronn Raymond tied his personal best with a high jump of 7 feet 2 inches.

"I'm an outdoor warm weather man, so with the warm weather today, I was able to compete very well," said Raymond.

Frank Fredricks put on another good show as he won both the 100-meters and 200-meters races.

"I felt pretty good, I had a problem with my start but was otherwise satisfied with my race. I still have to reach my goal of qualifing for nationals in the 100-meters," said Fredricks.

Teammate Tim Hesse helped the 4 x 400-meter relay team win with a time of 40.52 and came in second behind Fredricks in the 100 and 200-meter races.

"I'm just trying to work on my speed this week and next week for the WAC Championships and nationals," said Hesse.

The high hurdles and the intermediate hurdles were both won by Shaun McAlmont of BYU with times of 14.54 and 51.45 repectively.

"The high hurdles was my best time of the year. I had really good competition. In the intermediate hurdles, the race felt pretty good, I just accelerated and overtook the other guy on the straight-a-way," said McAlmont.

Other first-place scores for the Cougars came in the shot put by Soren Tallhem, pole vault by Dave Brannan, 1500-meters by Paul Rosser, 400-meters by Devoe Whaley, 5000-meters by Larry Smithee and the discus by Heikki Hollmen.

"I'm very pleased. These are really good performances, especially at the end of the semester. We're now going to try to prepare this week for the Louisiana State University Invitational," said assistant coach Sherald James.

Cougar baseball sweeps doubleheader; improves record to 15-7 for the season

By BRADY BINGHAM
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Baseball Team swept an unscheduled doubleheader against Mesa College Saturday, 7-1 and 9-6, to move their record up to 15-7 after snowy conditions forced the postponement of a four game series versus the Air Force Academy.

In Saturday's opener, BYU took advantage of four homeruns, including a two-run blast from first baseman John Batina, to down the Mavericks 7-1.

Cougar righthander John Sinclair picked up his third win of the season in a rare relief appearance.

In the nightcap, Mesa jumped out to a six-run lead in the sixth before Batina cracked a double with one out off Mesa pitcher Joe White.

Cougar Gary Miner drew a walk, Paul Cluff was hit by a pitch, then Gary Daniels and Burt Call drew walks before relief pitching was brought in.

Three relievers later, the Cougars had scored nine runs in the inning including Batina's second homer of the day (eighth on the season), which followed third baseman Mike Littlewood's three-run blast, his sixth.

Reliever David Nash, who came on in the fifth, picked up his first win of the season as the Cougars won 9-6.

On the day, BYU hit six homeruns, increasing the season team total to 47. The Cougars hitting round-trippers were: Batina hit his seventh and eighth, Littlewood his sixth, Ron Sisler hit his third, Bruce Ellis hit his seventh and Brad Eagar hit his fourth.

eparate tax returns might save an a married couple reduce taxes iling separate returns? Yes, in a r instances. Several changes en- e the prospect for reducing taxes narried couples via separate or t returns."

nese changes include the elimina- r in 1987 of the two-wage earner iction and elimination of the rital benefit" from the tax-rate dules.

enerally, differences for non- izers are minimal on separate re- s. (Except a difference of approx- ly $4 less tax – $4 additional tax n taxable income is about equal both spouses.)

oderate savings via separate re- s may be achieved by some cou- who can advantageously segre- one or more Adjustment Gross me (AGI) categories of itemized iction on Schedule A as follows:

emized Categories are medical nses, casualty and theft losses, certain miscellaneous deductions. entage of AGI not deductible: 7.5 ent med. expenses, 10 percent : $100) casualty and 2 percent ellaneous.

The object to dividing taxable income is to reduce nondeductible amounts via a reduced AGI on the separate return. Potential savings by this "massaging" of tax deductions depend on the tax bracket.

Most other instances of savings using "split returns" accrue to taxpayers with substantial incomes and more complex tax reporting.

However, a tax-saving phenomenon for low income separate filing could also occur when one spouse has foreign income and is eligible for foreign income tax credit.

Note! Tax credits may be lost on separate returns and may result in increasing Federal tax in some instances.

For further details see Form 1040 Instructions, page 7.

Quick ways exist to determine if you can reduce taxes by filing separate returns. After collecting your information, first compute tentative tax amounts using various assumptions for Federal and state returns.

Federal forms and many state forms are available in the Ombudsman's VITA Office in 230 ELWC. You may take your return to this office before you mail it for review at no charge.

Additional information from the IRS states that married couples who work are eligible for a special deduction of as much as $3,000 on 1985 federal tax returns.

This deduction may be claimed on either Form 1040 A or 1040 as a subtraction from gross income.

The deduction is limited to 10 percent of the qualified earned income of the lesser-earned spouse.

However, the maximum amount allowed is 10 percent of up to $30,000 for a deduction of $3,000. To take the deduction, both spouses must have earned income, such as wages, salaries and tips.

However, income earned by one spouse working for the other does not qualify; nor does such income as interest, dividends, pensions, annuities, IRA distributions, unemployment compensation, deferred compensation of nontaxable income.

The IRS also suggested that keeping copies of federal income tax returns from prior year not only serve as good financial records, but they can serve as guides for filling out returns as well.

A good deal of information may be utilized from old copies, especially for those taxpayers whose financial situations stay almost the same from year to year, according to the IRS.

Being able to refer to completed returns could also be helpful to those who might later wish to amend their returns, income average, or who are called in for a tax examination.
